was pointed out that parasites, now being extensively experimented with, were only one control method and should not be overemphasized. Moreover, it was agreed that the development of the proper farm machinery would contribute largely to future success. Mr. Truax said, Zones, in which the growing of corn would be prohibited, were also mentioned as a means of retarding the rapid spread of the borer.

America Called Center of All Human Progress

New York.—America has become the gravity center of the world for human progress, the spokesman for a visiting delegation of Rumanian statesmen, educators and students told Mayor Walker, explaining the delegation's motives in making a tour of the country.

The delegation of thirty, in this country for four weeks as guests of the Carnegie Endowment Foundation for International Peace, was extended the freedom of the city. Among the visitors were a number of young Rumanian women students clad in their picturesque peasant costumes.

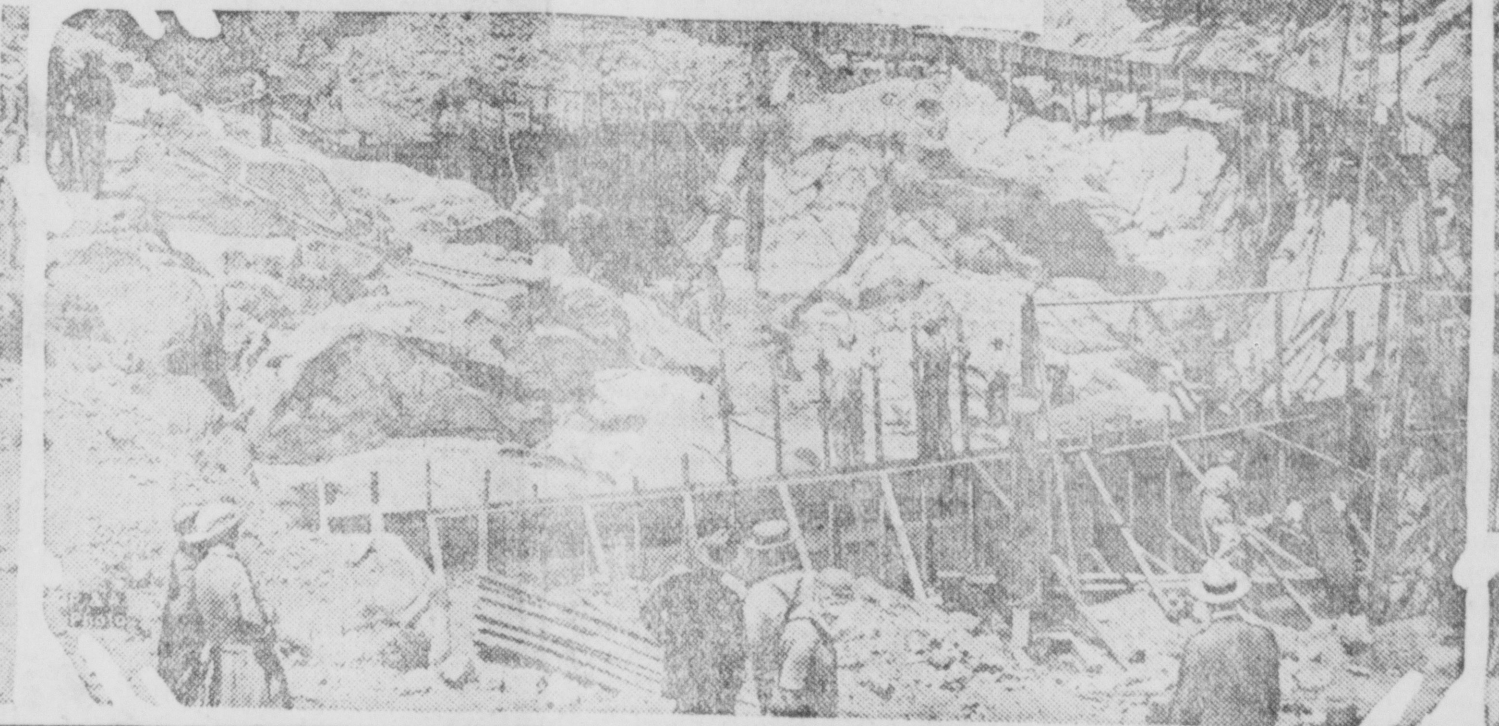

Prof. Nicola Sarban of the University of Jassy, their spokesman, declared since the World War the United States has displaced Europe as the leader in civilization and that the Rumanian people want to adopt the American ideals of "progress, or peace and of love for mankind."

Stage Fright

Rumford, Maine.—A timid young swain and his girl are missing and the city's home exposition is minus its big feature. Arthur Trenworthy and Alice Russell were to have been married at the show and to have received many gifts. The police scoured the town in vain when they failed to show up. They had stage fright, presumably.

Pacoima Dam Near Los Angeles Is Being Built

The first concrete in the base of the gigantic $2,000,000 Pacoima dam near San Fernando, Calif., was poured recently. Engineers estimate that the construction will cover more than a year and more than 170,000 cubic yards of cement will be hurled from the top of the dam through the long pouring chutes. Pacoima dam is one of the most important of the many flood-control projects of Los Angeles county, and when completed will rank as the highest dam in the United States, rising to 395 feet above the flood-threat bed of the river.

G. O. P. TO OPEN STATE CAMPAIGN WEDNESDAY

At Newark, Senator Willis, Myles Y. Cooper and Harriet T. Upton to Speak.

Columbus, O., Sept 28, (UP)—With preparations completed, Republican party leaders and organization workers were awaiting the official opening of the political campaign at Newark Wednesday. Thereafter an intensive state wide campaign will be launched until election day.

Congressman William M. Morgan, of Newark, will preside at the meeting. Speakers will include Senator Frank B. Willis, Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton and Myers Y. Cooper, Republican gubernatorial candidate. The meeting will get under way at 2 o'clock.

If fair weather prevails the meeting will be held on the court house square in the center of the city. In case of rain it will be held in doors. Party leaders from all over Ohio are expected to attend. Special trains will bring delegates from Cincinnati, Cleveland and Columbus.

Senator Willis and Cooper will return to Columbus where Wednesday night they will broadcast from WAIU.

Wrangling over the European debt question today continued between Republican and Democratic headquarters. T. E. Dye, Democratic executive chairman, issued a statement asserting the debt question will not be an issue in the senatorial contest between Senator Willis and Atlee Pomerene, Democratic nominee, in view of the latter's recent statement that he opposes cancellation.

READY MONEY OPPORTUNITIES ARE VALUABLE

The value of ready money and the opportunities it brings is pointed out in a recent booklet published by The Buckeye State Building and Loan Co., Columbus.

This financial institution, having resources over $32,000,000, extensively advertises its service thru many publications in Central Ohio, believing that all the people should know of its facilities.

The Buckeye further believes that if the people understood the power of compound interest, that instead of having 70,500 customers transacting business with it, there would be double that number.

The Buckeye's new booklet shows how money at five percent will double in 14 years, if the interest is allowed to compound with the principal semi-annually.

This institution has assisted thousands of people to acquire homes, as all of its funds are loaned only on homes, taking as security first mortgages yielding 6½ per cent.

The Buckeye has outgrown its present location at 22 West Gay street and is now erecting a new home at 32-42 East Gay street, where it will be better able to take care of its rapidly growing business.

The Vocal Spider

The barking, or "booming," spider was so named because it was found, in the day time, at spots where "booming" had been heard at night. But the booming was eventually traced to quails! Still the Australian spider has one accomplishment—it can whistle feebly by rubbing its palps against its mandibles.

AFTER LONG SERVICE SCHOOL TEACHER QUILTS

Miss Laura Keene Mader Retires After Teaching 37 Years.

The grade teachers of the high and the Corwin street schools to the number of twelve were entertained to a six o'clock dinner at the home of Misses Mader, 309 East Franklin street last Saturday evening.

The event was given in honor of Miss Laura K. Mader, and was in the nature of a testimonial given the honoree on her retirement as a teacher, after serving thirty-seven years as a teacher in the public schools.

Among the guests was Miss Alice Pedrick, another retired teacher.

The home was beautifully decorated with the season's flowers. Miss Mader was presented with a beautiful basket of flowers and also a La Garde handbag. The presentation speech was made by Miss Florence Hoffman, who in an address, couched in beautiful words and thought, brought back the days when Miss Mader was one of the corps of teachers and spoke of how she had endeared herself to them, who are now loath to lose one who has proven herself so valuable a help in the up-building of a character in the public school, as a primary teacher. Miss Mader was par excellence; it was she that first took the raw material, the beginner, and moulded into its character, a pupil, who afterward became a good and studious scholar for the upper grades. The influence of the primary teacher is paramount, and this was exemplified in the teaching of the woman, who after a long service, has retired, with the satisfaction, that in her long, public service, she was appreciated, and that she was a success as a teacher.

Find Tiny Flower After Century Hunt

Unalaska, Alaska.—More than 100 years ago a small white flower, declared to grow only on this island of the Aleutian group, was found near here. During the last century botanists vainly searched for it. This summer the second specimen was obtained here by Prof. George Huley of St. Ignace college, San Francisco.

The bloom was first reported by a Frenchman who accompanied a party known as the Kotzebue expedition to this island in 1815-19. Five other parties came to hunt for it and left empty handed.

"Allah Is Merciful" When Wine Enters

Paris.—All faithful Moslems must be teetotalers. The Koran forbids the use of even light wines and beer.

During the recent visit of Mulai Yusef, sultan of Morocco, to Paris, a Parisian society woman was surprised when she saw one of the sultan's most trusted aids, beside whom she sat, imbibing champagne.

"Doesn't your religion forbid you to drink wine?" she asked.

"Allah is great," replied the aid. Then, as he picked up another glass of the sparkling liquid and quaffed it, he added: "Allah also is merciful."

THE "IF" IN LIFE

"If" is indeed the kernel and heart of "life." Take the "if" out of "life" and we have a hollow, meaningless nothing.

It's the uncertainty of living, the game, the chance, which makes life worth while and keeps us on the job.

It's only the things we are not quite sure of that hold our interest, and interest is the driving power of progress.

If there were no chance there would be no game, and without the game we'd lose interest and lag. What would be the use of striving if we knew beforehand what was going to happen?

One secret of personal charm is a slight reserve. The individual who is continually surprising us with the disclosure of a new trait of character holds our unfaltering interest, while those whom we know exactly where to place are dull and colorless.

Uncertainty is nerve racking at times, to be sure, but how much better to have our nerves a little racked occasionally, than letting them get flabby from disuse.

We often hear people say, "When you get what you want, you don't want it," and this seems most true at times, however, it isn't, when we get what we want that we don't want it; it's just a lag in the game because of the lack of uncertainty. The "if" has been eliminated and with it the interest.

This often causes divorces and the remarriage of the same couple. They think they have lost interest, but let them lose each other and still hold the subconscious feeling that they should belong to each other; insert a little anxiety for fear some one else will get what they have a right to, and low and behold the interest is at once renewed.

It wasn't that they didn't want what they had, but the "if" was lost and they thought they were bored with each other, when in reality they were bored with "no chance."

So if life seems uncertain and the suspense trying at times, don't fuss. It's the "if" that is the heart of life, and the heart is the life of all.—Lancaster Eagle.

HOPES UNFULFILLED

The Reds failed to win the pennant, but that is no reason why their fellow townsmen should treat them in the spirit of the Roman amphitheater or address them in terms of scornful sympathy. There is this to say for the Cincinnati Ball Club: For the greater part of the season it played championship ball. The fans of the city were kept on tiptoe through weeks of jubilant anticipation of victory at the end of the 1926 contest.

But since the day of the Circus Maximus it has been thumbs down for defeated gladiators in all arenas, no matter how valiantly they may have fought for the glory of the game and the pleasure of those who demand to be amused.

It would have been a matter for local pride had the Reds brought home the pennant. People have rejoiced in reflected glory for ages. Gene Tunney's town is today patting itself on the shoulder because he distinguished it by winning the crown of pugilism. Defeated, the town would have turned its back on him.

The Reds deserve praise for their earnest effort. No one may understand all the reasons, the chances that militate against the victory of a club in these national struggles. The potential "if" is always an unruly factor. But no one can say that the club failed to do great work, work of merit, practically throughout the campaign. Cincinnati has no reason to feel ashamed of its ball club of 1926.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

That is a sporting spirit to say the least.

Character in Business

Character is playing more and more importance in business, both from the side of the management and the side of the employee. Once every effort was made to obtain efficiency. AUTO BANDITS TURN TABLES ON CAPTORS

Rural Police Forced To Shiver In B. V. D's. at Behest of Escaping Prisoners.

Toledo, Sept. 26.—A tall, old-school deputy sheriff from Kentucky County, Mich., paced the floor at Toledo police headquarters today, after he and two citizens from Lowell, Mich., had been forced to do an aesthetic dance in their B. V. D's. in a wood near here, a few hours previous, by two alleged auto bandits whom they were bringing to this city.

The prisoners, Ed. Francis, alias "Blackie Joe," 20, and Jack Heintz, alias "Lucky Miller," were model prisoners of Deputy Sheriff Bowes, F. A. Gould, 50, automobile dealer, and his helper, Jurden Moore, 20, until they neared the outskirts of Toledo.

The alleged bandit pair then elevated the hands of the trio with a gun they had secreted in the upholstery of the stolen car. They ordered the deputy to drive to the outskirts of the city, where they forced the captors into a woods.

The trio were deprived of trousers and the alleged bandits decided to take the coat, badge and gun as well as $25 from the deputy sheriff. They also relieved Gould of $85 and then commandeered the alleged stolen car and went on their way, waving adieu to the shivering guardsmen.

The trio finally reached the farmhouse of Stephen Miller, where, after some explaining, they obtained trousers. They then called the Lucas County officers and deputy sheriffs were sent to the rescue, bringing them to Toledo.

The stolen automobile belonged to D. G. Smith, Toledo, and the pair were being brought here for prosecution.

OHIO

Is Second Lowest In Cost of Government.

Calamity howlers and Republican politicians seeking to obtain control of the state government have made broad assertions as to the cost of Ohio's state government. A recent bulletin issued by the U. S. Census Bureau is authority for the statement that the average per capita cost of state governments last year was $9.20 and that the cost of government in Ohio for the same period was $4.85 per capita or $4.04 under the average. But one state in the Union has a lower per capita cost for state government than Ohio and that was Georgia whose per capita cost is $4.67. A comparative analysis of the bureau's figures makes the Ohio cost remarkable when it is considered that other great industrial states of the North and whose state expenditures and needs are similar to those of Ohio, were substantially higher and, in some instances nearly two or three times as high. For example, New York's per capita cost was $14.96 in 1925. Michigan was $10.63, New Jersey, $11.46, Pennsylvania, $8.04, Illinois $6.94 and Wisconsin $9.47.

A comparison of Ohio's state government with all of its departments shows that under the administration of Governor Donahy the cost is lower than in any other state in the Union with one exception, that of Georgia whose government does not have the ramifications present in Ohio.

1 TO 1 TIE

Played By the Eagles and Washington C. H. Merchants Sunday Afternoon.

The F. O. Eagles went to Washington C. H. and battled for twelve innings to a tie, scoring one run.

Circleville put a fast team on the field; they outfielded their opponents also outthrew them 7 to 3. But Wical's strikeout ball was working overtime, no less than 11 men being left stranded on the bases, and the boys were only able to put over 1 counter.

This came in the eighth. H. Miller reached first when Briggs muffed his hard fly to right, went to 3rd on Mowery's fourth straight hit, the next batter was hit by the pitcher filling the bases; Alfater then got a nice hit to right scoring H. Miller. But Mowery was thrown out at the plate by Briggs' fast and accurate return of the ball, this ended the scoring as the following batters could not deliver the necessary hit.

Washington C. H. scored their run in the fifth when Miller, first man up, drew the only base on balls of the game; he took 2nd on an infield out, the next man struck out, making two down; Sidner, the next batter, got a hit past first base, Miller by fast running scored from second.

Kanavel pitched a beautiful game only allowing 3 hits in the twelve innings. Mowery led the hitters by getting 4 hits in a row while H. Miller led off with a nice 2 bagger in the 10th but was unable to advance while the next three men were retired.

This same Monk pulled off two fielding plays that cut off safeties, his jumping catch of a looping fly to center with his back to the diamond was as pretty a piece of fielding as you would see anywhere; he also went way over to his left and took Suttles' bid for a hit with his gloved hand, making the throw to first while still on the run, in fact the whole team played a nice game, the outfielders worked nicely on everything that came their way, while third base was well taken care of by Moninger; Thompson and O. Miller played their usual fast game at short and first.

Next Sunday The Chillicothe Paper Co. will play a final game. This should be a corker.

Paris' Two Types of Evening Dress

Glittering Sequins or Unembellished Silk; No Middle Class.

It is a matter of history that every new Paris season launches some particular type of dress or some individual style which will predominate over the many that have been offered by the grandes maisons de couture. No seer, however astute, can ever predict what particular fancy or foible is to sweep the world of fashion, and it is only by close observation that a new vogue can be detected before it has become popularized. This season, observes a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, is witnessing a movement toward a vogue unique in the annals of the mode du soir. Paris has become a house divided.

Recent smart events have shown that there are two distinct types of evening dress which are equally numerous and, of their kind, equally smart. First, there are the plain chiffon gowns in a variety of exquisite colorings and, entirely opposite, is the sparkling robe du soir embroidered with diamante, beads, sequins and all that glitters.

A Parisienne who has adopted one type early in the season will seldom

HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION

Gene Tunney Is Commissioned First Lieutenant.

Philadelphia, Sept. 26.—(UP.)—Gene Tunney, the new heavyweight champion of the world, was informed he is to be commissioned as first lieutenant in the United States Marine reserve corps.

Announcement was made to Colonel Cyrus Radford, commandant of Marines at the navy yard here in a telephone message from Marine headquarters at Washington.

Colonel Radford reached Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, and conveyed the news.

"I wanted to tell Gene," Col. Radford said, "that he had passed his examination and will soon receive his commission as first lieutenant in the reserve corps. Convey to him my congratulations and tell him we in the corps are all proud of him."

Vivian Winston, in "Monte Carlo," Evening Ensemble of Gold Cloth.

venture into the field of the other. It is unusual to find her wearing plain chiffon on some occasions and bursting forth into diamante for some special ceremony, save that of fancy dress.

The sparkling woman has to work from the other end of the scale. She diminishes her gala effect for the smaller occasions, such as a dinner in a quiet restaurant or in the seclusion of the home. However, when she is dressed in full evening regalia she actually outglitters her surroundings, and the blaze of jewels pales before the brilliance of her sequins and semi-precious stones.

This season Chanel is the leader in plain chiffon gowns, though Paton and Molyneux come a close second with their many charming models. But the woman who disowns embroidery usually substitutes Chanel chiffons. These appear in a brilliant deep grass green with a touch of blue in it. They are worn in lacquer and dark currant-red, in all the shades of autumn leaves, and a pale champagne beige that is scarcely colored. Madonna blue, turquoise blue and a large range of pinks, from flesh to deep geranium, are all used for these charming frocks, besides black and white, the former being a favorite with very young girls, as it shows up the youthful complexion to such advantage.

New Perfume Container of Atomizer Variety

A novelty for the woman who likes to carry a few drops of her favorite perfume is to be had in the new containers of the atomizer variety. They are very small, fitting into the palm of the hand, and come in bottle shapes, square and oblong, but are flask-like in flatness. These little bottles are entirely enameled and have colorful designs of Dresden flowers. They are used by pressing the top on the spot where the perfume is desired.

Frocks of Rajah

Among the latest models to be brought out are those fashioned of shantung or rajah silks. They are on an equality in popularity with Chinese damask and come in such a wide range of colors that they are adapted both to street frocks and to the colorful models designed for sports and country wear.

A Three-in-One Garment

A new undergarment which combines a step-in chemise and brassiere is made of glove silk trimmed with fine fern lace. It is cleverly cut and fashioned to give the necessary support and provides a perfect foundation for the frocks of summer.

SECRET OF BIG GERMAN CANNON

Famous Guns Used to Bombard Paris Longest Artillery Pieces Made.

Berlin.—The secrets of the long-range German cannon that bombarded Paris from a distance of over sixty miles, closely guarded even after the armistice, have now been permitted to leak out, following the recent death of the inventor, Dr. Fritz Rausenberger, of the Krupp firm.

It has been generally guessed that the guns were the longest pieces of artillery that had ever been constructed, and the new information confirms these conjectures, for their length was 36 meters, or about 128 feet. Each gun was assembled out of three principal parts. Into an ordinary 15-inch naval gun an inner tube of 8.2-inch caliber, 98.4 feet long, was fitted, and over the part that projected beyond the naval gun an additional strengthening hoop was shrunk on. The total weight of the piece was 154 tons.

The weight of the 8.2-inch shell was 220 pounds; its wall thickness was about 2 1/2 inches at the base and a little over 1 1/2 inches at the top. Its head was given an extraordinarily long taper, 15 to 20 inches, to aid in overcoming the resistance of the air.

Fired at Extreme Elevations.

To obtain its unprecedented range,
the gun had to be fired at an extreme elevation. Theoretically, 45 degrees would have been the proper angle, but this would have been correct only in a vacuum, and to get the shell far up into the thin air where resistance was low, the gun was set at 50 degrees. The angle of elevation remained fixed, and to correct for differences in wind, air pressure, etc., the powder charge was varied, being calculated anew for each separate shot. The charge for the longest range at which any of these guns was ever fired, 80 miles, was 660 pounds. At the range of 74 miles, the shell reached heights of over 25 miles, making more than two-thirds of its flight at elevations of over 6 miles, or half a mile higher than Mount Everest. The time of flight was three minutes.

Due to the great length of the gun
and the very heavy powder charge, the comparatively light shell left the gun's muzzle at the velocity of over a mile per second, with the enormous muzzle energy of 42,000 foot tons—enough to lift the whole mass of the world's largest battleship a foot into the air.

Two Fuses Necessary.

Because the shells tended to drop on their target, the city of Paris, side-wise instead of end on as a projectile normally does, it was necessary to provide them with two fuses to insure their explosion on impact. The fuse system worked successfully, for none of the shells that struck Paris failed to explode. Another difficulty arose due to the long, high flight of the shell: the rotation of the earth tended to deflect its path, sometimes as much as half a mile.

The terrifically high pressure, temperature and friction of the discharge of the piece tended to make the barrel bulge slightly, and because of its great length the gun tended to "whip," raising the danger of a premature explosion of the shell in the tube. This did happen once, ruining one of the four guns. The other three, according to the terms of the armistice, were dismantled and destroyed.

The designer of the battery, Dr.
Fritz Rausenberger of Baden-Baden, was a well-known authority on ballistics and had for several years been associated with the Krupp firm. In addition to the long-range gun, he designed the great 42-centimeter "Big Bertha" that destroyed the Belgian forts early in the war. This was a relatively short-barreled howitzer, of no great range but of terrific smashing power due to the enormous weight of its shells and the heavy charge of high explosive they carried.

Kaiser's Mustache Secret Is Revealed

Omaha, Neb.—The secret of Kaiser Wilhelm's spikely effect mustache is explained by Carl Schropp of Omaha, who, as personal barber to the former emperor, originated the famous tonsorial characteristic.

Schropp, who served many of Europe's royalty until "discovered" by the Kaiser, said:

"First, I would wet the mustache thoroughly. Then with my fingers I would push the hairs up at either end until they stood as you have seen them in pictures. Next I took a schmin-bar (a mustache strap), made of fine silk, with hooks on end, and put it over the mustache and attached the hooks to the Kaiser's ears. I used my fingers and a fine comb to put the hairs just so; then with the mustache strap on it, I would wait for it to dry.
After that the Kaiser's mustache would stay the way he wanted it for 24 hours."

Two hours was the usual time spent by the Kaiser in the royal tonsorial room, Schropp said.

DAUGHERTY AND MILLER NOT TO GIVE TESTIMONY

In Trial Before the United States District Court Says
the New York World.

One important point in the government's case against Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller remained Monday to be covered in testimony.

Federal Attorney Emory R. Buckner forecast at the opening of the trial three weeks ago that he would trace a $40,000 block of Liberty bonds to the former attorney general accused with the former alien property custodian of sharing in a $441,000 bribe.

Last week, Mr. Buckner showed Miller once had five $10,000 Liberty bonds of the same numbers as those involved in a payment made by Richard Merton, German copper magnate, to the late John T. King for expediting a $7,000,000 war claim. Buckner also traced Liberty bonds of certain numbers to the Midland National bank of Washington, C. H., where Daugherty had an account.

"Right there in the Midland National bank," said Mr. Buckner in outlining his case, "there were $50,000 of these same Liberty bonds, and Mal Daugherty, brother of Harry, president of the bank, took $40,000 on a particular occasion and had one of the employees of the bank sell the $40,000 and actually made out a certificate of deposit to Harry M. Daugherty, and we will produce the certificate of deposit."

Mal Daugherty has testified that Harry destroyed some of the bank's records.

Seventy-five witnesses have been called by the government and there are exhibits, many comprising hundreds of separate items.

Daugherty and Miller are making separate defenses. Their attorneys have not indicated whether they will testify. The New York World says they will not.

In its outline of the case, the government said it depended for proof of its conspiracy charge upon its ability to convince the jury that King was "working in behalf of Daugherty"
when he treated with Merton.

After & Co. had sold the bonds, a check for $39,335.56 was sent to Mal
S. Daugherty, it was established by a stipulation between Max D. Stueur, counselor or Daugherty, and United States Attorney Buckner.

When the check for $39,335.56 arrived at the Midland National bank, Miss Vera V. Veal, assistant cashier, testified, it was not placed in Mal Daugherty's account, but he took a certificate of deposit, which he said was the same as a cashier's check.
Two weeks later, according to bank ledger sheets, this sum was paid, but the record did not show to whom the money was paid.

Centenarians Will Be Common in Next Century

London.—Men and women one hundred years old will be active in business and social affairs by 2026. It is predicted by Sir Kingsley Wood, parliamentary secretary to the British ministry of health.

"In the next century there is no doubt in my mind that the average expectation of life will be one hundred years, and a person of seventy-five will be regarded as comparatively young," said Sir Kingsley, who has recommended more physical exercise for members of the house of commons.

"Good health and good temper go together," he continued, "and if the members of parliament took more exercise fewer members would be suspended, and wild and excited scenes in the house would disappear."

Announce New Method of Painless Childbirth

New York.—A method which it is claimed will make childbirth painless and is in no way followed by nausea was described by Dr. James T. Gwath-mey of this city. Doctor Gwathmey spoke at the convention of the Medical society of New York state.

Whereas twilight sleep depended on amnesia to bring about insensibility, the new method accomplished its ends by the actual elimination of pain,
he said.

This method, Doctor Gwathmey continued, consists of three injections, two of magnesium sulphate and one of a mixture of the sulphate with small quantities of morphine and quinine. The combination of drugs was new, said Doctor Gwathmey, and the danger element less than in twilight sleep.

CANNONBALL BAKER

ESTABLISHES NEW MARK.

Slashing a generous slice off three trans-continental motor records in one swooping drive, Cannonball Baker, of Indianapolis, arrived in Los Angeles, California, Tuesday, September 21, driving his own privately owned Ford roadster sealed in high gear, just five days, two hours and thirteen minutes after leaving New York City.

He was officially timed at the start and finish by Western Union officials.

The car used was a standard type of Ford roadster that was not equipped with overhead valves, nor special cams, nor counterbalanced crankshaft.

It was Baker's seventy-fourth mo-

Lieut. Gen. Sir William Furse is

"There are only two officers in the Beatty and the other the prince of

"From the little I know of the prince

a nice report as he might otherwise," the speaker added.

In most business deals there is an element of risk. Buy a piece of property, and if you find that you have made a mistake you can't "back out." The other fellow has the money and you "are stuck" with the property.

It is different when you borrow money under the popular City Loan plan. Here there is absolutely no risk. If you decide you have made a mistake in getting a loan from us (which isn't probable), all you have to do is to pay it back—any time you want to. And you simply pay interest for the exact time you have the money—be it a day, a worth of unhappy business on its books, so you can make no mistake with a popular loan.

AMUSEMENTS

This age of restless women that had its birth in the opening years of the present century is the theme of "Time the Comedian," Robert Z. Leonard's Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production at the Met theater for an engagement of two days.

Lew Cody and Mae Busch are playing the leading roles supported by one of the most brilliant casts of any current picture. For those critics who are decrying the lack of proper picture titles "Time, the Comedian" is an answer.

The title has much to do with the production. Time in an animated sense is pictured as the great comedian of life twisting the destiny of all mortals as a jester might play with puppets. The futility of struggling against time and fate is presented thru the medium of a great panorama of the first quarter of the colorful twentieth century.

Lew Cody as the suave man of the world is at his height. He assays this type of role, that has made his name a byword with the picture going public with polish and ease.

Mae Busch is playing her greatest role in this production and as a result of her finished performance she may be truly hailed as one of the greatest emotional actresses of the screen.

Gertrude Olmsted gives a charming portrayal that marks her for big things. Other members of the cast include Roy Stewart, Paulette Duval, Creighton Hale, Robert Ober, Rae Ethelyn, Nellie Parker Spaulding, Davir Mir, Templar Saxe, Shannon Day, George Periolat, Lillian Langdon, Jacques Abbott, Gertrude Bennett, Frank Elliott and Mildred Vincent.

Have Whales Two Wives?
Scientists Seek Answer
Hull, England.—One of the missions of the specially constructed steamer William Scoresby, fitted out at Hull for the British crown agent, is to see whether whales have two wives. In a laboratory in the ship scientists will arrange their experiment to discover whether whales are polygamous, the birth rate of whales, their expectation of life, how far they wander from home, and their diet. Then the answers will be put together with a view to taking steps to stop the diminution of the number of whales and the threatened extinction of the species.
In order to obtain the information identity disks are provided. From a special contrivance in the ship, a small dart will be fired at every whale seen. This dart will enter painlessly into the blubber, bearing a silver-plated identification disk which will be attached to the dart before firing.
Fishermen catching these whales will be asked to forward the disks with full particulars to the crown agent. In this way many data about the habits of whales will be obtained which it is hoped will be of scientific and eventually of commercial value. The expedition is expected to last about two and a half years. Captain Scott's old ship, the Discovery, will also take part in the expedition.

BUILDINGS ON ODD-SIZED LOTS ARE QUEERLY SHAPED

New York Has Many Curious Structures Which Were Not Planned as Freaks.
New York.—Some of the most curiously shaped buildings in the world are located in New York without one of them being planned as a freak. This condition arises from their having been planned according to streets which originally were laid along twisting roads or Indian trails. The Flatiron building is the best known, with its knife edge facing north while the southern exposure is widened in the space between converging streets. Broadway has a similarly shaped building every few blocks up to Times square.
Broadway bisects Manhattan island from the southeast corner to the northwest. The remainder of the main streets are laid out in rectangular squares, which causes the odd-shaped lots to appear at each intersection.
Times square itself is formed by a junction of this sort, and is anything but square, being rather more the shape of a diamond, as Broadway crosses Seventh avenue there from the east and then turns north.
An apartment house located at Riverside drive and One Hundred and Sixteenth street is built inside of a long curve of the latter street, which makes the building a triangle with one side "ballooned" outward. The building across One Hundred and Sixteenth street, a companion to this one, is built with the curve inward. If the street could be removed and the two buildings joined they would dovetail.
The new buildings, in conforming with the building laws, also have created a skyline which in the case of each building is beautiful but seldom noticed from the street.
The buildings above the sixteenth or twentieth stories are pyramided to allow as much light as possible on the street, but the streets are so narrow that no proper perspective can be obtained to view the upper portions.
One of the few buildings not so hidden is the American Radiator building, south of the Public library grounds. This tower is built in orange and black stone, each insert of the pyramid marked so that when the tower is illuminated at night it has the appearance of a great pile of coals.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Karshner, of Pickaway township, returned home Monday evening from a weekend motor trip to northeastern Ohio. They visited Saturday with their daughter, Miss Mary, of Canfield. Sunday they were accompanied by Miss Mary and Miss Edith Rogers and motored to Youngstown where they viewed the ruins of the food house and dwelling houses of east Youngstown which were destroyed by some unknown means of explosive; also visited the Butler art institution, Idora and Mill-creek parks, Youngstown Sharon and Newcastle.

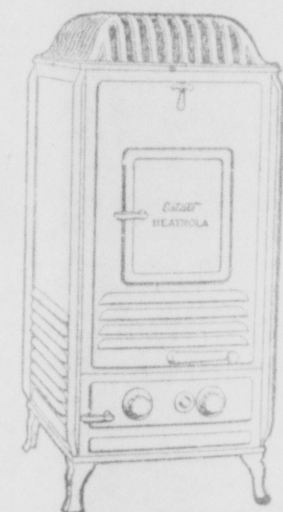

The seventh annual reunion of the Long family was held Sunday, September 5, in the beautiful shady grove at the home of Mrs. E. J. Long. One hundred and seven relatives and friends enjoyed the sumptuous dinner and social hour. The talk by Denny Cross, of Columbus, was greatly appreciated, followed by the business meeting. The following officers were reelected: President, Willis Puckett; vice president, Roscoe Straley; record ing secretary, Mrs. Roscoe Straley; corresponding secretary, Laura Long; treasurer, J. C. White Jr., and historian Martha Long. The home of Mrs. E. J. Long was again selected for the meeting place next year, Sunday, August 28. Ice cream and cake was served after which all departed for their various homes, hoping to meet again next year.

STATE FORESTER

Says Plant Walnuts In the Fall To Contribute To Future Timber Supply of Ohio.

The state forester is urging school children of Ohio to plant small forests of black walnut this fall as a contribution to the future timber supply of Ohio.

This year there will be a big crop of nuts and planting stock can be easily obtained. Collect the nuts as soon as they fall, and plant them this autumn, he says, either in permanent location where the trees are to stand or in nursery rows.

If the nuts are planted directly where the forest is to stand, space them about three feet apart. Make a hole with a sharp stick, mattock, or spade for the nut and cover to the depth of about two inches. With a sharp stick a great many walnuts can be planted in a day. Close the hole by stepping on it with the foot.

The nuts can also be planted in nursery rows in the garden. Place them in a trench, close together so they touch each other, cover with two inches of earth. Plant this fall. Next fall the seedlings will be from ten to twenty inches high and the right size to plant permanently.

Occasionally when nuts are planted directly where the forest is to stand, they are taken by squirrels and chipmunks. If such has been the experience, grow the one-year-old seedlings in the garden, where there is less danger of the seed being disturbed.

Never let seedlings stand more than one year in nursery rows, as it is difficult to transplant older seedlings.

It is not necessary to hull walnuts either for permanent or nursery planting.

The Department of Forestry will not be able to supply walnut seedlings from their nurseries this year, because of the failure of trees in the State to bear seed last year. The large crop of nuts offers an opportunity for land owners to plant black walnut by use of the nuts.

Mother Kills Man Who Injured Her Sixteen Year Old Daughter.

Martin's Ferry, O., Sept. 25.—Mrs. Raffla Marchio, 37, last night shot and killed Patsy Laropina, 33, at the Marchio home where Laropina went, police said to punish the woman's sixteen year old daughter, Mary, who had charged Laropina had forced his attentions upon her. She said she was about to become a mother.

Laropina was shot as he entered the Marchio home. He died a few minutes afterward.

Mrs. Marchio, her step daughter and James Calvaletti, Laropina's companion, were held as material witnesses to the shooting.

Progress of Live Stock Improvement

Popularity of Pure-Bred Sires Is Growing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The growing popularity of pure-bred sires for the improvement of live stock in the United States is evident from the report of progress of the "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. The report which consists of seven pages, is a summary of improvement work conducted under a definite plan and is complete to July 1.

Two outstanding accomplishments received special mention. One is the official announcement that Union county, Ky., was the first in the United States to reach a 100 per cent pure-bred bull goal. A personal investigation of the live stock breeding situation in that county, made by a department representative, confirmed earlier reports.

The second accomplishment is a record-breaking advance by stock owners in New Haven county, Conn., in the use of pure-bred sires for all classes of live stock kept. That county has a total of 747 persons enrolled for live stock improvement, making it the premier county in the United States in that respect.

Other outstanding results in the campaign are as follows, the figures being complete to June 30, 1926:

Persons enrolled 16,896
Animals, exclusive of fowls, 541,449 undergoing improvement 541,449
Poultry undergoing improvement 1,276,335
States in which participants reside 46
Counties having 100 or more participants in campaign 43
Copies of the report, which is mimeographed, and information concerning methods of conducting the work may be obtained on application to the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Hot-Weather Hints for Safely Shipping Swine

Members of co-operative live-stock shipping associations when marketing hogs can profit by observing all of the "hot-weather hints" listed by the United States Department of Agriculture as necessary for best results. The list includes the following suggestions:

1. Haul or drive your hogs into shipping station in ample time to allow them to become rested and cool before loading.
2. Insist upon a clean car bedded with sand.
3. Wet down the bedding and interior of the car before loading.
4. Give only a light feeding before shipping. Heavy feed means more body heat generated.
5. Load not more than one hour before the train is to depart.
6. Load slowly and carefully. Avoid excitement, and do not beat or bruise the animals.
7. Load not to exceed 16,000 pounds in a standard 36-foot car during warm weather.
8. Have the cars drenched at every available point immediately after the train stops.
9. Use ice bags suspended from the car roof whenever possible. Six bags to a car will suffice.

Exhibiting Cattle

Exhibiting good cattle at fairs is the best local advertising possible, but leading out thin, undersized cattle is expensive advertising. Dairy cattle need only be in moderate flesh to show to advantage. Cattle to be shown should receive some grain, however, from now until fair time and large amounts of hay in order to develop middle. It will improve the quality of hide and hair to blanket the animals with burlap sacks for six weeks previous to showing.

Temporary Hog Pasture

Temporary pastures are made use of on a large number of hog farms as a supplement to permanent pastures or to fill the gap where permanent pastures cannot be grown. Every barn yard and small lot where hogs are kept should be plowed and seeded at least once a year, and as they are usually well fertilized they produce abundantly. The most common temporary pastures are rye, oats, rape, soy bean and cowpeas. Pasture is a big essential for swine.

Feed Growing Lambs

For the growing lambs cracked corn and oats with an addition of bran makes a very good ration. The lambs should be weaned around five months of age. Earlier than this may be advisable in exceptional cases; particularly would this be true if one had a good, fresh pasture of meadows or wheat or oat stubble in which the lambs could be turned and which possibly would be sufficient to take care of both the lambs and the ewes until cold weather sets in.

Tuberculosis in Poultry

Tuberculosis is a chronic infectious disease of domestic and wild birds. It is generally brought into the poultry yards with fowls that are purchased from infected flocks or with the eggs of diseased birds that are obtained for hatching. If the disease exists in neighboring flocks the contagion may be carried by small birds or animals passing from one yard to another. A peculiarity of tuberculosis of birds is that the liver and intestines are always severely affected.

CIRCUS BEASTS CAUSE RIOT IN FRENCH CAFE

One Customer Remarks, "I've Seen 'Em Before" as Lion Strolls Through Saloon.

Valenciennes, France, Sept. 26.—Eight lions, two tigers and two bears, which caused a panic throughout the city when they escaped from a circus last evening, were captured early today, three circus attendants being injured, one severely, in the round up.

One lion calmly entered a cafe at midnight and all but four of the customers vanished without paying. Of the four who stayed, one, laughing loudly, declared he had "seen them before." The lion seized a leg of mutton from the cafe counter and went out the back door.

One tiger walked into a butcher shop and ate an entire lamb. He was captured fast asleep.

A tardy homegoer met a lion on a street corner. The king of the jungle sniffed his hand and went on, but the man remained in a dead faint. Another lion smashed in the door of a hatter's shop, curled himself up on a pile of hats, where he was captured in his sleep.

THE OVERLAND SIX

The day of the slow, cumbersome bulky automobile is gone. A safer, more active, more powerful type of car has come to take its place.

The old school of engineering is rapidly passing out of existence. A new regime of scientific thought has started in America.

The change began 18 months ago.

You find this change in the Overland Six which embodies the most advanced, the most efficient engineering from both sides of the world.

Europe contributed the principle of lighter weight, lower height, with longer, lower, smarter body lines.

America gave us performance, speed, pick-up and increase power.

65,000 were sold the first year, this accomplishment did not just happen, there had to be something to warrant such success.

Built to meet present day performance standards, you can drive it at 45 to 55 miles an hour with safety, ample power to master hills, 5 to 40 miles per hour in 21 seconds, full pressure feed oiling system, positive water pump circulation.

It will out-pull, out-run, out-accelerate and out-perform any car in its weight, price or size.

Safety is its real contribution to motoring, built low to the ground, hugs the road at every turn, banishes slipping and sideways, which causes so many accidents.

Easy riding, big roomy inside for five people, easy to get in and out, room to stretch. These features you will appreciate when you compare it with other cars of this price.

Beauty, this car was designed by an artist from 18 of the best cars in America and Europe.

EGG BREAKAGE REDUCED BY ABSORBERS

Delivering Butter to a City Customer.

Men, women and children are not the only transportables profiting by "relaxed motoring" on properly controlled automotive springs, it is discovered.

F. H. Simon, the head of a stabilator company of Los Angeles, enumerates a long list, including cookies, flowers, milk bottles, eggs—and even mentions dogs and fowls—as beneficiaries of stabilized easy riding.

Lessens Bottle Breakage.
"Milk dealers operating light trucks," he declares, "find that properly controlled spring rebound lessens bottle breakage and speeds up deliveries wonderfully. Bakers have told me a similar story. Pies, cakes and breads, particularly, are perishable merchandise and can't stand much rough going and coming. Spoiling is negligible, however, if the car springs are made to behave themselves. Then there are flowers. Florists say that an efficient recoil check reduces very materially the damage to posies and potted plants during delivery."

Less Egg Breakage.
"And I know a proprietor of a Lankershim egg ranch," he adds, "who reduced his losses through egg breakage 75 per cent by having his Dodge truck equipped with stabilators. He used to figure his loss from broken hen fruit at about $1,400 a year. Now, he says, it is not more than $1 a day, or about $360 a year."

Dogs and Fowls.
Some one asked Simon what about dogs, poultry and the like, and he confessed that he didn't have any actual testimony from dog owners or hen haulers. But he insisted he was pretty sure the canines and chicken folks were all very appreciative of "relaxed motoring" wherever they had tried it, and would be glad to say so if they could talk.

TIRED DRIVERS COURT DANGERS

Fatigue Plays Important Part in Causing Automobile Accidents.

Fatigue plays a far more important part in causing automobile accidents than is generally recognized. A motor truck owner was driving to a distant city at night to be there for a load early in the morning. He had been working hard all day and was fatigued. At a grade crossing he came into collision with a train and was killed.

It is quite likely this man went to sleep at the wheel. In any case he was ordinarily a careful and cautious driver. He knew the road well. He was familiar with the crossing. There is every indication that the accident was due solely to fatigue.

A party of tourists started out to make a long motor trip. In order to make it in the shortest possible time they decided to keep going night and day. One would drive while the others slept, or at least tried to sleep. The journey ended in a fatal accident before the goal was reached.

Needs Recharging.

The human system is a good deal like a storage battery. When the current in the battery is low, it fails to turn the starting motor. Even the light may be dim. That battery will not work well again until it is recharged.

The only way a fatigued man can become alert again is to have his vitality recharged through complete rest. The imperfect rest he gets while riding in a car is not rest enough. He needs good, sound sleep and plenty of it.

A young person can usually regain his vitality more quickly than one along in middle life or an old person. He sleeps sounder and he responds more quickly to rest.

Persons of all ages, however, are subject to fatigue. The only difference between ages is the rate of recovery.

Reactions Slower.

At the beginning of a long trip any driver is far less likely to meet with an accident than he is as he nears the end of a long, continuous drive. At the start, he is alert. If there are careless and reckless drivers on the road he is able to avoid a collision. After 100 or more miles of driving he is far less alert. His reactions are slower. When he gets in a tight place he fails to respond and the chances are greatly against him if an accident is imminent.

This means that a person should avoid driving when fatigued, when tired out because of having driven a great distance already or having done work that proved tiring. If he has not had his usual amount of sleep he is also fatigued and should avoid driving.

The distance a person can drive without becoming fatigued will vary with different people. A person who is driving every day and who is driving long distances can drive more miles a day without fatigue than a person who drives only a few days a week and then but short distances.

Door Operator Is Great Convenience for Garage

The Scientific American illustrates and describes a door operator, the invention of L. L. Shockley of Columbia, Mo., as follows:

Tell Missing Cylinder

To tell which cylinder is missing, explosions, short-circuit the plug with a screwdriver. Touch the end to the cylinder and lean the blade against the head of plug. This will prevent that cylinder from firing. If it is a dead cylinder it will make no difference in the sound of the exhaust. By noting the sound of the exhaust you can tell which cylinder is missing explosions.

ALTAR STONE RECENTLY FOUND SOLVES A PUZZLE OF BIBLE

Explains Why Paul and Barnabas Were Dubbed "Hermes" and "Zeus" When They Visited Lystra.

London.—An event in the life of the Apostle Paul which has long puzzled scientists and biblical students alike has at last been explained, according to an announcement made by two experts on Greek inscriptions, Prof. W. M. Calder of the Manchester university and W. H. Buckler of Baltimore.

The puzzle question is, Why were Paul and Barnabas saluted respectively as "Hermes" and "Zeus" when they appeared in the town of Lystra, in Asia Minor? For answer, the two Greek scholars point to inscriptions and carvings they have found near the town, which indicate these were the two gods regularly worshiped by the natives of the valley of Lystra.

The general reason why the mystified inhabitants thought the two strangers were gods is traced to the statement that Paul healed a man who had been crippled from birth. But why these two particular gods were chosen has never been understood.

Professor Calder states that "archeologists have long searched for the answer among the monuments of the valley of Lystra, but these monuments revealed nothing about the ancient religion of the valley."

Recently, however, he and Mr. Buckler were journeying in this region, under the auspices of the American Society for Archeological Research in Asia Minor, when an accidental detour brought them to Kivak, seven miles from Lystra. While there they found a limestone altar in the courtyard of a house. The stone bore a Greek inscription, defaced and worn. The inscription ended, Prof. Calder says, in the words "to the god who harkens to prayer and to the god . . . and to Hermes a vow." The name of the second god is lost, but the Greek letters for Zeus would exactly fit in the gap, he states.

At the same place the two scientists were also shown a small bronze figure of Hermes, with an eagle, the bird of Zeus, beside him.

Earlier evidence of the prominence of those two deities in the region had been found in 1909 by Prof. Calder at another place, a day's journey from Lystra. This discovery was an inscription telling of the dedication of a figure of Hermes, together with the dedication of a sun dial to Zeus. The dedications, Prof. Calder points out, were of the same racial stock as the people of Lystra.

Ovid's story, that Zeus and Hermes appeared in a Phrygian valley to found a temple for their joint worship, has been used to discredit the story in the book of Acts, on the theory that the two narratives were confused versions of the same tradition. Professor Calder believes his finds prove that the Bible story has a solid and logical background, as the event would have been a natural happening in this region.

Will Place Tablet on Clara Barton's Home

Danville, N. Y.—The Clara Barton Red Cross chapter of Danville, first unit of its kind in the United States, is making plans to mark with a memorial tablet the house owned and occupied by Miss Barton during the years when she was working for the establishment of the American Red Cross society.

The house is located at the foot of a hill leading to the Jackson health resort. Nearby is Brightside, home of the Jackson family, friends of Miss Barton and caretakers of her health while she was recovering from paralysis after arduous work as an international Red Cross nurse. Previously her brother, Capt. David Barton, who served in the Civil war, had recovered his health here.

Loving the quiet of the hillside and enjoying the friendship of many local friends, Miss Barton purchased the cottage, conveniently located between hill and village. Here it was that she planned and furthered her efforts to bring the United States into the organization of 61 nations pledged to support Red Cross work.

Liquor Traces Burn 139-Year-Old Mansion

Washington.—The lure of old wines and fine liquors was blamed for the fire which recently destroyed Ravensworth, 139-year-old Fairfax county (Va.) mansion.

The historic house, home of Gen. W. H. F. (Rooney) Lee, Confederate general, had been deserted for a year, since the death of his widow, but it still contained its luxurious furnishings. Some one who knew of the valuable contents of the liquor vaults started the fire in the hope of gaining access to the cellar, it is believed.

The home was built by Lord Ravensworth in 1787. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

House Fly Fast Is Becoming Extinct

Providence, R. I.—According to Dr. Charles H. Chapin, superintendent of health, the common house fly, carrier of disease and general pest, is rapidly becoming extinct.

The doctor says that the automobile is the cause of their decrease. The growing number of automobiles on the roads of all types is gradually doing away with the horse and stables and manure piles where the flies breed.

THE FEDERAL LAND BANK IN NEW LOCATION

The New Federal Land Bank Operates in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee.

A Crellin, secretary-treasurer of the Columbus National Farm Loan association, will move from his present location 30 East Broad street, to 83 South High street, Columbus, the new Kresge building, having leased for five years one of the finest suites of rooms in the building, facing High street and overlooking the State Capitol grounds.

Mr. Crellin organized the Loan association four years ago, and by his energetic management it has grown to be an important factor in Columbus' financial business circles, having brought millions of dollars into this territory thru the Land banks. The association now has a capitalization of $75,000,000, of which over $52,000,000 is in paid-up outstanding stock.

The Federal Land bank loans are made on farms exclusively, at a small cost, a low rate of interest, payable in 36 years on the amortization plan at $30 per thousand each six months, this paying both principal and interest and retiring the entire loan in 36 years with optional payments after five years.

All borrowers participate in the profits of the Federal Land bank in addition to the low interest rates, the bank making distribution of its profits at the end of each year in cash thru the local association. Last year Mr. Crellin distributed $3,288 to borrowers in Land bank profits and anticipates distributing a much larger sum this year.

The association now uses the entire time of G. K. Cherrington appraising farms in the seven counties it covers, and anticipates employing another appraiser.

Mr. Crellin reports the great relief these loans has been to farmers who during the past five years experienced financial hardships. They also have been of great help in assisting farmers of limited means to acquire farms of their own, by paying a small sum on the purchase price and securing long and easy terms on loans for the balance.

He also says that he is proud that his association has never had a foreclosure, neither have they one delinquent in amortization payments.

The Federal Land bank, of Louisville, Kentucky, under which the Columbus association functions, operates in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee and has resources of over $111,000,000.

RECITES STORY OF FIRST U. S. HIKER

Explorations of De Vaca Told in Ancient Book.

Claremont, Cal.—A rare volume containing the story of what purports to be the first transcontinental foot journey for a white man in the conquest of North America, is the latest addition to the William S. Mason collection of Western Americans in Pomona college library.

The book tells of the adventures of Cabeza de Vaca, Spanish explorer, in journeying through the southern section of the United States between the years 1528 and 1536, and of his explorations in the River Plate countries of South America after his appointment as governor of the region in 1540.

An expedition, of which Vaca was a member, left Spain in 1527 headed for Florida and Louisiana. It was wrecked on the Florida coast. Fifty survivors drifted to the coast of Texas in rudely constructed boats and made shore November 6, 1628. All but 13 died of disease or starvation and these became slaves of the Indians.

By a stroke of good luck, Vaca stayed off threatened death for himself and companions by posing to the Indians as a divine healer, usually being able to cure minor maladies.

After six years, Vaca, with two companions, escaped. They reached the coast of California and turned southward, arriving at Mexico City, July 24, 1536.

As a reward for his exploring services Vaca was appointed governor of the provinces of the Rio de La Plata in South America. Here he incurred the jealousy of his compatriots and was sent back to Spain in irons, remaining in prison six years awaiting trial. Eventually, he was exiled to Africa.

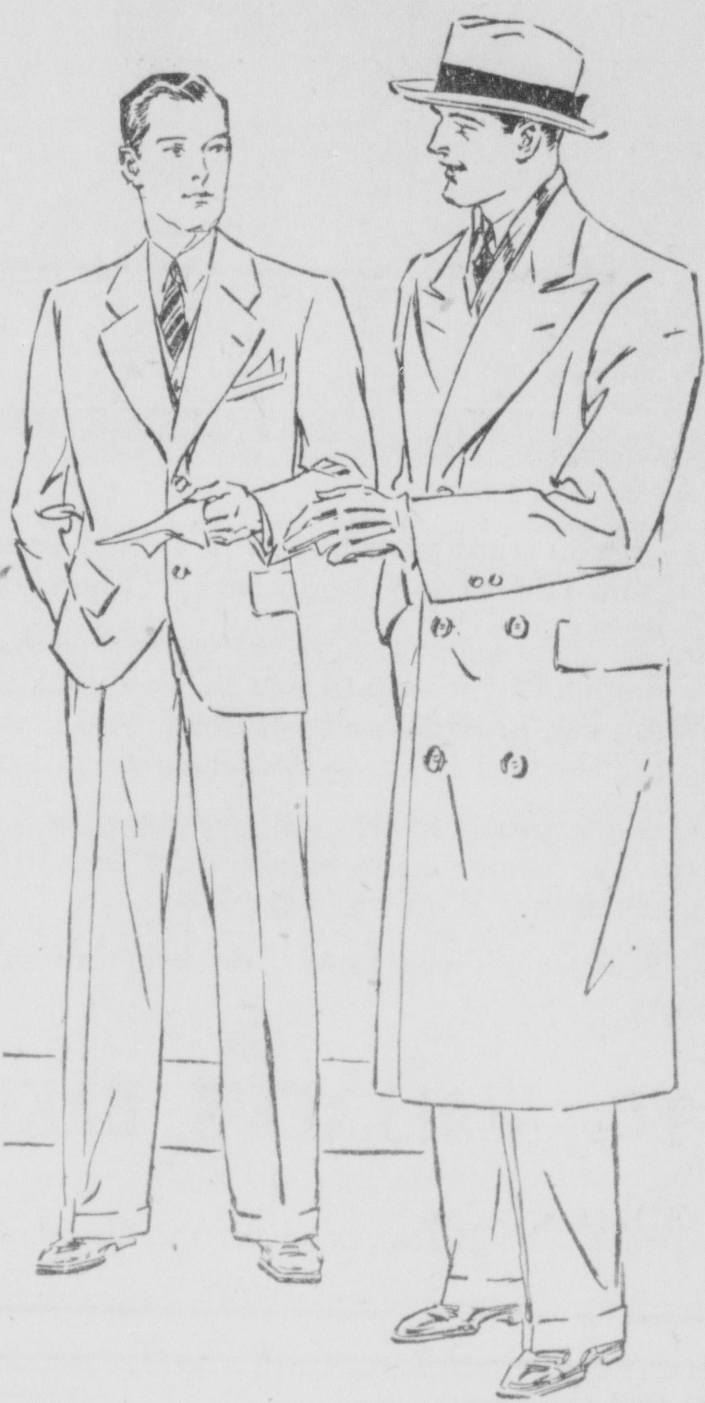

Two editions of the first portion of the book are known to be in existence—one in the New York public library and the other in the British museum at London.

Oil Found in France in Small Quantities

Paris.—Oil in small quantities has been struck in the south of France near Beziers on the gulf of Lyon.

Water "contaminated" with oil has been known near the little village Gabian outside of Beziers since the Seventeenth century, but quite recently two zoologists were moved to investigate its industrial possibilities. Their efforts were rewarded, for three pockets were located at depths around 500 feet, which between November, 1924, and March, 1926, yielded 1,500,000 gallons of crude oil.

Unfortunately, this product was characterized by the drawback of a 10 per cent paraffin content, but even after the process of refining the total output reached a figure well over a million gallons.

The future value of these wells is difficult to predict, says Dr. R. Brunshweig, engineer of the French bureau of mines, but the quantity thus far produced is a respectable contribution to the ever-increasing demand of the French nation for more gasoline for automobiles.
